

1. What is a Leadership Consultant?

A leadership consultant fosters strong relationships with chapters, volunteers and universities within a region while providing coaching on operations, organizational development and General Fraternity initiatives. This person assists members and communities in the form of operational assessment and support, administrative support, leadership development, expansion and education through the promotion of the principles and obligations of our Fraternity.

2. What are we looking for?

- Excellent communication and organization skills
- Strong personal character and work ethic
- Desire to travel and ability to adapt to new situations quickly and easily
- A history of chapter and community involvement
- Deep love for the Fraternity and helping others
- Relocate to Oxford for a two year term

3. What is it like to be an LC?

- Lots of travel and diverse experiences – manage a region of 10-25 chapters
- Meeting new people and making contacts – work with 500+ collegians and 100+ volunteers
- Challenging situations and personal growth – present to groups ranging from five to 300
- Enable positive change, every day for the fraternity that you love

4. What are the benefits?

- 38 paid vacation days per year, including two weeks at the Holidays
- Technological incentives – laptop and phone
- Flexible schedule – set your own while traveling
- Diverse experiences meeting new people
- Live with your best friends . . . rent free
- Experience a “true fraternity experience”

“The experience of working for Beta has given me the true Beta experience. I have learned about leadership, life, respect, maturity, Beta values and, most importantly, learned about myself. I truly feel the 3 and 7 working in all of our lives and are evident in everything we do in the office and in our operations department.”

— Mike Jorgensen, Nevada-Las Vegas '99

“I particularly enjoyed the camaraderie of the operations team, the autonomy awarded to me in all of the positions I held and the experiences I was afforded as a member of the staff. Looking back, I cannot think of a better post-college work experience to prepare for future occupations with heavy responsibilities.”

—Vince Mikolay, Bethany '00

You have a definite desire to work for the Fraternity you love. You are also aware of the increasing competitiveness for employment with the General Fraternity. You will apply, but you want to make sure you are in a good position to be hired. What can you do to make yourself stand out as a candidate?

1. Be involved

All of the men who work for the General Fraternity have a history of leadership. Nothing prepares you to work for the fraternity better than leading as an undergraduate. Experience leading your chapter and on campus are expected. While not everyone was a chapter president, all led in some capacity. Get involved in your chapter, on campus, and in the community.

2. Attend leadership opportunities

Nearly all of our recent applicants are graduates of at least one Beta Theta Pi leadership program. Make attending these programs a priority:

- The John and Nellie Wooden Institute for Men of Principle
- The Peter F. Greiner Leadership College
- The Undergraduate Interfraternity Institute (UIFI)
- The Jon Williamson Futures Quest
- The Miller Nichols Chapter Presidents Leadership Academy

3. Intern

Interning with the General Fraternity is an incredibly valuable experience. You will have the opportunity to see the behind-the-scenes work of the staff and see how you fit on the team. Interns are a step ahead of the field as the staff has the opportunity to see them in action and interact in a professional environment. Be sure to express your interest in this opportunity early and often!

4. Get exposure and ask questions

As with any employer, the more you are seen, the better your chances are. Never pass up the opportunity to visit with General Fraternity staff, volunteers, and alumni. Schedule a time to meet with your consultant when he is in town. Visit with your district chief about his relationship with the staff. E-mail questions to staff members and visit with former staff members who may live in your area. Always take advantage of the opportunity to get more information.

5. Apply early

An early application will start the conversation much earlier. It communicates your interest and puts your name on the radar right away. Once available, you can find the leadership consultant application posted on the Beta Theta Pi website at <http://www.betathetapi.org/resources/leadership-consultants.html>

We are excited about your interest in working for the General Fraternity! We are committed to finding the best and brightest in Beta's Broad Domain to serve as leadership consultants. Hopefully, these five tips will help you have a great experience throughout the hiring process!
